

PREFACE

As one of the remarkable events of academic exchange in Vietnam in the year 2021 thriving on unprecedented lockdown and social distancing attributed to the outbreak of the Covid-19 pandemic, the VietTESOL International Convention 2021 successfully took place under the co-organization of The VietTESOL Association, The National Foreign Languages Project (NFLP) and Vinh University on October 22 - 24, 2021. Despite being held entirely on a virtual platform, great achievements have been yielded thanks to the resolve of stakeholders and state-of-the-art technical support.

Under the theme of “Rethinking English Language Education in the COVID Era” represented in three strands: Technology in Language Teaching and Learning, Teaching Methods and Applied Linguistics, and Professional Development, the two and a half day convention featured online fascinating presentations and effervescent discussions of expertise and experience among specialists, lecturers, teachers and researchers in the field of English Language Teaching.

The first day of the Convention witnessed the impressive demonstration of ten zoom-based Pre-Convention workshops with important topics of current interest: (1) Young Civic Engagement and Multimodality; (2) Teaching for Success: making effective use of CPD frameworks for teachers and teacher educators; (3) Engaging in Digital Spaces: Using Technology and Teamwork to Achieve Learning Goals; (4) Exploring Translanguaging Practices in Primary and Secondary Schools in Vietnam; (5) Sustaining Growth through Teacher-led Communities of Practices; (6) When teaching and Learning Become a Happy Journey with Transformative Experiences; (7) Simple Ways to Gamify Your Online Live Lessons; (9) Do It Backwards! Back Chaining for Pronunciation; (10) Dynamic Ways to Increase Student Interaction.

The second day of the Convention welcomed distinguished keynote speakers in the five livestream plenary sessions with excellent presentations. In addition, 18 zoom-based workshops, 45 oral workshops, 140 prerecorded sessions were successfully organized and broadcast via a firm web-based video-conferencing system technically supported by the Regional English Language Office, the US Embassy and Consulate in Vietnam, attracting more than 1700 participants. Many participants, presenters and reviewers were English language professionals from various countries in the world like the USA, Australia, England, Japan, China, the Philippines, Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia, etc. Especially, a good number of primary and secondary English language school teachers all over Vietnam were sponsored to take part in the Convention. Such precious and practicable sponsorship for experts and grantees was provided by The Regional English Language Office - The US Embassy in Vietnam, British Council, Cambridge Assessment, Oxford University Press, Pearson Publication, ClassIn, University of Languages and International Studies, Edmicro, Talk Online Language Center, Joy Education Group and other educational organizations. This has made significant contributions to the incredible success of the pioneering virtual VietTESOL International Convention 2021, which created deep and unforgettable impressions on the participants, who felt so touched that they did not want to bid farewell on the final moments of the closing ceremony.

With a view to recapturing and preserving the achievements of the Convention, the Editorial Board of the VietTESOL International Convention 2021 Proceedings have been working seriously to build up a collection of 25 full-text papers developed from the presentations by authors at various sessions of the VietTESOL Convention 2021 Proceedings. All the selected papers have passed strict procedures of blind review and edition via the Open Journal System (OJS).

Each submission without information for author identification was carefully reviewed by two experienced academics, who worked independently on a voluntary basis to provide their feedback on both the form and the content of the papers based on detailed rubric schemes developed by the Editorial Board. Each initially accepted paper was then revised by the author(s) and proof-read as well as copyedited by an assigned editor until it satisfied the required standards. The 25 selected full-text papers cover a wide array of topics reflecting both traditional and current interests in the field of English language teaching from the perspectives of both theory and practice. While a number of authors invested their research efforts in seeking more effective methods and techniques to enhance the quality of teaching and learning of the four practical skills, grammar, translation and literature to learners of different levels and conditions including autistic schoolchildren as well as penetrating into effective ways to integrate culture with English language teaching, some researchers attempted to build up strategies that could help learners meet the requirements of IELTS or VSTEP-formatted tests, others focused their attention on the application of information technology advances into teaching and learning activities in the tendency of increasing popularity for online teaching and learning with the assistance of web-based tools and video-conferencing platforms. All these initiatives and innovations were intended to further promote blended learning for the sake of sustainable progress and improvement in English language education.

We would like to sincerely thank the authors of the papers in this collection for their cooperation and patience throughout the whole editing process, and undoubtedly, for their contribution of novel and brilliant ideas to the cause of English language teaching. We would also like to express our deep gratitude to volunteer reviewers and editors for their sterling work and valuable consultation necessary for the quality of the papers. Our heart-felt thanks go to the members of the technical team who have been working untiringly to provide professional support whenever it was needed. Especially, the publication of the VietTESOL Convention 2021 Proceedings owes its advent to the leadership of the Organizing Board whose members are from The VietTESOL Steering Committee - VietTESOL Association, The National Foreign Languages Project and Vinh University.

We do hope that readers interested at home and abroad will find the VietTESOL International Convention 2021 Proceedings a source of useful, interesting information and lasting inspiration.
